Anti Commercialization Group Talks Over Salinas Strategy

Carmel Unincorporated and citizens interested in the zoning issue at the junction of Route 1 and Carmel Valley Road were out 400 strong Monday night at Sunset Auditorium, but they experienced some difficulty agreeing upon a unanimous suggestion to be brought before the County Board of Supervisors on July 1.

Although everyone seemed to be against C-1 zoning at the entrance to the valley (that was agreed to be the sense of the meeting), there were two main ideas as to how the supervisors might be best approached: Some said, led by Stanley Pedder, that they should adopt a resolution asking that "no further commercialization be allowed and that the board of supervisors ask the county planning commission to review their recent decision."

This resolution was viewed by some at the meeting as a weak one, but also as a means to get the zoning question back to the planning commission where it can be fought further.

On the other side of the camp were those whose feelings were expressed by Capt. Archer Allen, USN (Ret.), who said something to the effect that he didn't see any reason why they should pussyfoot around at the supervisors' meeting July 1. He received a good round of applause when he asked that they adopt a suggestion to the supervisors asking that all commercial zoning be revoked at the entrance to the valley.

Among those who spoke were Gunnar Norberg, chairman of the meeting; Maj-Gen. E.G. Chapman, who reviewed the zoning issue for those assembled; Fred Farr, who explained what he thought is the function of a planning commission; Miss O.B. Haseltine, who reviewed some of the zoning problems confronted by people in the upper valley; Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, who represented the Carmel Women's Club "unofficially," and Corum Jackson, who heads the Carmel Planning Advisory Board.

"(1) No private demand exists for a commercialized area, (2) No public necessity exists at present, in the past, or in the forseeable future, (3) Commercialization would bring a definite traffic hazard into being, (4) Residential property values would be diminished, (5) Commercialization would ruin the view and (6) C-1 zoning has been established against the protests of many citizens."

Mr. Farr said the planning commission should have made a population study of the area in question and said "strict architectural control" cannot be assured if and when the commission changes its membership. He also read a definition of what type of commercialization is allowed under C-1 zoning, which he said allows "everything from a retail store to a mortuary." Again Mr. Farr referred to the fact that property owners have not showed up at the planning commission meeting to state their side of the issue. He said, "It is obvious that they knew what the planning commission was going to decide ahead of time."

It was stated by Mr. Norberg that a day nursery for children of people who wish to attend the July 1 supervisors' meeting will be set up at the Sunset School. It was also decided that residents who wish to attend the meeting should meet with their automobiles at the school so that persons without transportation will be assured of getting of Salinas.

No resolution was voted upon for the supervisors' consideration but a committee was approved by informal vote to draw up suggestions to the supervisors. This committee includes, Mr. Pedder, Capt. Allen, Dr. Steve and Mrs. Norberg.

RUTH H. COOKE Concert Success

What people say to the performing artist after a concert is both interesting and significant. I recall once standing near a distinguished singer while a long line of admirers greeted her, making such comments as "I loved your pianissimo." Finally a realistic and unpretentious member of the audience, holding out a program for the diva's signature, simply said, "Your singing, madam, has given genuine pleausre." At this the artist replied with a note of satisfaction and sincerity that had not been apparent earlier, "That is the nicest thing anyone could tell me."

I recalled this experience at the recent song recital given by Ruth Hill Cooke, contralto. Obviously, that was the opinion of the large and enthusiastic audience that attended her recital at the Carmel Women's Club: her singing had given genuine pleasure.

Ruth Cooke possesses a fine voice, rich and appealing in quality. She is, moreover, an artist who understands what it means to bring a song to life.

It was a varied program made up of works of the old French and Italian schools, as well as German Lieder; modern French, a group of Scandinavian songs with English text, and American ballads. The singer has a sure command of foreign languages, as well as real insight into the meaning of the poem.

Nobility and tragedy motivated Miss Cooke's reading of Lulli's "Bois Epais" and Rossi's "Rendi Mi," wheras "Two Bergerettes," arranged by Weckerlin, furnished a refreshing contrast of lightheartedness.

The Franz group was particularly done, and frequently the singer's phrase recalled the weaving tones of the violoncello.

The proceeds of this concert were destined for the needy in Finland, Miss Cooke having a special affection for people of that race. It was highly fitting then that the concluding song of the Scandinavian group, which came just before the intermission, should have been an adaptation of religious words to the Sibelius melody "Finlandia." In emotional content this was the high peak of the program, though "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton" and "Think on Me," two Scotch songs which were given as encore, obviously received equal appreciation from the audience.

Noel Sullivan's accompaniments were completely sympathetic. Throughout he knew the intention of the singer and supported it unobtrusively. If at times he was technically inadequate, no one was more conscious of it than he, aware as he must have been that there were almost a dozen fine pianists listening to him.

RUMBLINGS!

On this page last week was an editorial titled "A Decision is Rendered - At Last!" Not only was the vocal reaction on the part of some of our readers unfavorable to the editorial (see the letter to the editor elsewhere on this page), but there were even some rumblings of pressure to be brought to bear.

But the SPECTATOR stands by its guns.

In an effort to help clarify the situation we went to one of the property holders at the contested intersection - Mr. Charles A. Fuller. We asked him to present a few comments regarding the controversy over the realignment of the road intersections and the rezoning of part of the adjoining property.

He said, "The proposed road changes, which were precisely worked out by competent County and State Highway engineers, were decided upon as the most feasible solution to the present dangerous and most unsatisfactory condition. The Carmel Valley is developing very rapidly and in the near future it will be imperative to remake this intersection. It seems to me excellent planning to arrange the zoning and land ownership at a time when only unimproved property is involved. To wait until property values have greatly increased because of improvements seems to me to be bad planning."

When asked about the protests from members of Carmel Unincorporated and other citizens, Mr. Fuller said, "I would like very much to allay the fears of the surrounding property owners in the regard to the possibility of any construction on the 'island' that might prove unsightly or in any way detrimental to the area."

"I naturally have more interest than anyone else in being sure that any 'island' development will be a benefit to the surrounding area," he said. "The immediately adjoining property to the north as well as to the property around and in back of the Hatton house on the hill will probably some day be prt of the Carmel Land Company's' Carmel Hills.' I am doing my very best to develop this into the Monterey Peninsula's finest restricted home area. For anyone to think that I would jeopardize the success of this development by unwise use of the 'island' is not clear thinking."

Regarding what type of a commercial development might some day go into the intersection, Mr. Fuller said, "All of the planning relative to this development, including the business area zoned north of the 'island,' has been worked out by the very best available community planning engineers. Almost all modern community planning calls for small business centers close to the residential areas with sufficient parking facilities and carefully planned building. Such centers can be most attractive and I can assure everyone that when this part of the development is undertaken it will be a real asset to the entire area."

"Some of the people at the June meeting of the planning commission obviously do not realize that commission members do not receive any compensation for their efforts, and their sole objective is to intelligently coordinate the developments throughout the county. To insinuate that these men are making anything but honest, well thought out decisions is doing them a great injustice."

The foregoing comments by Mr. Fuller were merely a reflection of his views. The SPECTATOR has no one's axe to grind, but it seemed time that someone took the trouble to ask one of the property owners at the contested district how he feels about the situation.

Letters

Dear Editor:

I have read with interest your comments on the rezoning of the entrance to the Carmel Valley. Your current issue particularly seems to miss the real points involved.

The protestants against the Planning Commissions action are of the opinion that this is not "planning" at all, but merely "zoning" and that only because the owners of the land want it. The Commission we think should take into account all the factors, and not merely the owners, and should consider the topography of the area, its availability to roads, safety of the public, the demand for or need of additional areas commercially zoned, the effect upon the scenic situation, values created and values destroyed, and so on. In other words there should be an attempt to plan for the future of the whole area involved, and not merely a determination to zone a small area for commercial purposes now because the owners want it so irrespective of the effect upon larger areas involved and also irrespective of the general weal.

Is not that what a Planning Commission is for?

There has been no suggestion of cancelling or changing existing zoning. There is no demand for commercial development in existing C-1 areas. The so-called island has been so zoned for 16 years, and as the topography of the land makes it at least difficult of access for the areas which look close to it on the map in which there is any substantial population it would seem that there is no great rush to extend the commercial zoning, thus leaving plenty of time for study and planning.

There can hardly be "compromise" in a matter of this kind. The compromise suggested was merely more or less additional zoning. The issue is whether the area involved can be properly planned as a commercial district, and time should be taken to adequately survey the whole district and its probable development, without considering the ownership of any particular pieces, before any changes in "zoning" are made.

You refer to architectural control, offered by the commission as a sop to the protestants, but this is unsafe ground, as the commission will admit that even if they have the legal power to enforce such control they have neither the funds nor the personnel to do it. This merely tended to confuse the issue.

"Residents of the City of Carmel" - to quote your article - most certainly "have a stake in this valley entrance zoning question also," and so have the residents of the valley, and of the Highlands, and of the county as a whole, and I rather think they will be heard from both before and on July 1st. If only those who are within "seeing distance" can be properly heard on a matter of this kind, we might as well disband the planning commission. Most of the protestants have no financial or selfish interest in the matter at all.

In an earlier issue you implied that this proposed additional "zoning" constituted PROGRESS, and that the Protestants were agin it. Is any new building, wherever situated, and for whatever purpose used, progress? Then why try to keep our highways presentable scenically, or to influence development at all?

Did you consider what is permissible in "C-1" districts, Section 19.1 of the Zoning Law? Take a look, particularly at the all embracing clause "and any other business uses, which, in the opinion of the planning commission, are of the same general character as those enumerated in this subsection and will not be obnoxious or detrimental to the district in which located." Please remember when so doing that the planning commission approved a stable in a residential district (R-1) which did not, and could not, comply with its own regulations in section 29 of the ordinance.

Might I suggest that you dig into this matter rather more diligently to avoid the risk of misleading your readers?

Yours very truly,
Stanley Pedder.

JANET BUCHANAN ARNOLD

Mrs. Frances Wallace was stationed in front of Airway Market Saturday collecting signatures for a petition to protest the extension of the recent commercial zoning where the valley road meets Route 1.

Our thumbnail sketch for this week is Joe Hitchcock, one of the oldest valley residents. His family came to the valley in 1882 and left in 1894 for the El Pescadero Ranch which is now Pebble Beach. Joe came back to the valley in 1945, bought himself some land and has several hobbies which keep him very busy. He writes a column for the Valley News, recalling memories of the old days, and does odd jobs.

The movies at the barn were well attended last weekend despite the exodus for the Salinas doings. Coffee is served during the show, but is is advisable to bring a coat.

Folk dancing was featured Tuesday at the Carmel Valley Inn and will be featured once a week on the same evenings.

The board of directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association met Tuesday at The Lodge, Robles del Rio, and it was announced that a general meeting will be made known later.

Mrs. Beverly Ward, of San Jose, is living in the Virgil Partch home while they vacation on Balboa Island.

It looks as if another valley project will stay at the visionary level indefinitely. Up to now it has been impossible to get any definite information regarding the plans for the new Tularcitos School from either the board of trustees or Robert Stanton, the architect who is drawing up the plans.

Mrs. Sherburne Cooke and Mrs. Marian Lippman, of Berkeley, spent last week at the White Oak Inn.

The petition to change the name of the post office from Robles del Rio to Carmel Valley, keeping the names of the subdivisions intact, is going forward rapidly. Dr. R.D. Joldersma is acting as chairman of the committee securing signatures.

Mrs. Irene Griffiths, of San Francisco, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Cameron Burnett, who gave birth last week to a baby boy at the Peninsula Hospital in Monterey. The Burnett's are newcomers to the valley, and reside in one of Mrs. Mildred Dobies' cottages.

Starting July 1, persons receiving mail on the star route above Rancho Carmelo will receive their mail through the Robles office. This will be a great convenience as they will no longer have to journey to Monterey for packages and registered mail.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Muscutt celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary Sunday evening at the First Theater, Monterey. They were given a very large and beeyou-tiful bouquet.

Fathers Day at Holman's Ranch was a big success. Rathers roda all over the hills, swam in the pool and were kings for one day anyway.

Mr. and Mrs. Franz Bauer, managers of the Alisal Guest Ranch, were guests at Holman's, as was Miss Pat Popejoy, program director of Station KCBS, San Francisco.

Mayor of Carmel, Fred Godwin, owner of the La Playa Ranch, entertained during the weekend several hotel men from San Francisco. They were Karl Weber, Whitcomb Hotel; Edmond Rieder, Palace Hotel; John Quigley, Drake-Wiltshire Hotel; Don London, St-Francis Hotel; Claude Rosenberg, Chancellor Hotel; Willard Abel, Sir Francis Drake Hotel; E.B. De Grolia, Sir Francis Drake Hotel; Robert Odell, Allied Co., and Claude Gillam, Hotel Claremont.

Those interested in the new Carmel Valley Chapel elected a finance and building committee last week. Edgar Mayfield is chairman of the building committee with Pete Danielson and Marian Kittrell assisting. Gen Ernest Dawley heads the finance committee with the help of Irene Baldwin and Mrs. Carl Frisbie.

Four Stanford co-eds and one from UCLA are doubling as waitresses and members of the swim ballet at the Carmel Valley Inn. The ballet is staged by Marian Heatherly, "Miss Collegiate of 1949," swim instructor at the inn.

The Hitching Post, owned by Capt. L.F. Bosshardt, USN (ret.) has donated a room and equipment for teen-agers on Wednesday evenings.

Cassie Parsons and her husband had a barbecue Sunday evening for her sister and brother-in-law, Colonel and Mrs. C.E. Peeler, recently returned from Germany.

PEBBLE BEACH

The Golf Capitol Of The World

Pebble Beach Personalities

Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Howard, of New York, arrived at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, California last week to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

With them to join in the celebration are their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Ferguson and Mrs. O.O. McIntyre, all of New York.

The Howard's daughter and son-in-law, Captain and Mrs. A.C. Perkins, who are stationed at the Del Monte Naval School, entertained at The Cypress Point Club for the group and in honor of the anniversary.

Roy Howard is president and director of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers and he is chairman of the executive committee and director of Acme Newspictures. His son, Jack, is executive vice-president of Scripps-Howard, and Mr. Hawkins if chairman of the board.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Ale entertained last week with a cocktail party and shower to honor Miss Nancy Kimbrough and John Sokolich, of Monterey, whose marriage will soon take place. Among the guests who gathered to fete the couple were: Mr. and Mrs. Dave Muff, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard, Mrs. Anne Howard, Mrs. Frances White, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mullarky, Mr. and Mrs. William Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Prince, Mrs. Verna Davis, Miss June Vestal, Robert Keith Campbell and Clark Schell.

Mr. and Mrs. Euclid W. McBride, of Greenwich, Conn., arrived recently to spend some time at their Carmel Point home. They have only recently returned from and extended sojourn in Europe.

Grants Shop Leases

The Del Monte Properties Co. will operate three of the stores in the new "arcade" now being built into the new construction across from the Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, while others will be taken over on a leased basis, according to Samuel F.B. Morse.

Plans now are for the following stores: Cabbages and Kings, men's store; Lush's Gift Shop, by the owner of a similar shop in the Beverly Hills Hotel; a beauty parlor, operated by Mary King, and a women's dress shop for which a lessee operator has not been chosen, Mr. Morse said.

Del Monte Properties Co. will operate a wine shop and gourmet's grocery store, an art store for retailing of the works of local artists, and a general store which will handle drugs, candies, flowers, books and magazines and other sundries. Julian P. Graham has arranged to open a photographer's shop and a barber shop will probably be run by Ben Franklin, Mr. Morse said.

The new post office will also be located there, and Del Monte Properties Co. will have its general offices on the second floor.

EDITOR OF NEW GOLF MAGAZINE

Helen Lengfeld, president of the State AWVS and vice-president of the national organization has taken on another job. She is editor-in-chief of the CALIFORNIA GOLFER, a new non-profit publication with the dual purpose of promoting amateur and professional golf, and raising funds for the AWVS Veterans's Hospitals Golf Program.

Contributors to the editorial columns of the new magazine include outstanding players, green keepers and sports writers.

The AWVS Veterans program is on a national scale. The purpose is to equip every veterans hospital in the country with a full size or nine hole course or putting greens. Mrs. Lengfeld, with the assistance of Patty Berg, plans for California courses patterned on those already an accomplished fact at the Palo Alto and Livermore Veterans' Hospitals.

PMGA July 9-10

The recently arranged Morse Cup Team Match between California amateurs and amateurs from the Pacific Northwest has created much interest in golfing circles.

The inaugural contest is scheduled to be played in Seattle July 9 and 10 as a preliminary event to the Pacific Northwest Golf Association's amateur championship tournament scheduled on the same course July 11-16.

Next year it will be played as a prelude to the California Amateur Championship held annually at Pebble Beach. Thereafter it will alternate between the title tournaments of the two sections.

A permanent trophy will be presented by S.F.B. Morse of Pebble Beach to be known as the Morse Cup and will be held by the winning team for one year.

The match will follow the pattern of the Walker Cup contests between Britain and the United States, with singles matches at 36 holes the first day and foursomes the next. Each team will consist of eight men, who have been selected by the Pacific Northwest Golf Association and the California Golf Association.

The California team this year will be Edward E. Lowery, Jack Bean, James E. French, Jr., and Ernest O. Pieper, Jr., from the North; Bruce McCormick, Bud McKinney, Ralph Evans, and John W. Dawson from the South. Southern alternates are Thomas Dwyer and Edgar T. Lindner. The Pacific Northwest team will be announced at a later date.

Mrs. Marcia DeVoe of Sunset School showed some of her outstanding color slides to the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club last friday night. Since changing from black and white to color about two years ago, Mrs. DeVoe has taken over 2000 slides, From them she has selected a group pertaining to the Monterey Peninsula, its history and its "circle of enchantment," and has written and recorded a running commentary, which she presented at the regular Garden Club meeting. Music Group Slates Pianist

Miss Sargent's life so far reads rather like that of a prodigy. At the age of six while registering her brother for musical instruction the teacher noted Marilyn's unusual hands and asked to give her instruction. Marilyn studied four years with Mrs. Louis Strohauer, the noted Bach interpreter and at the age of ten was presented in solo concert. She next studied with Ludwig Harikian for a year and a half until he entered the service in 1942 whereupon she was accepted by Miss Marian Fox Withrow of Fresno State College as a piano pupil - incidentally the only child ever taken. While under her tutelage, Marilyn appeared in concert and at the age of fourteen entered the college harmony class where she consistently received the grade of A.

In 1945 her musical activities lay dormant and Marilyn became intensely interested in dramatics. She appeared in radio and many local performances. In the spring of 1948 her musical interests revived and she resumed instruction with Miss Withrow and after only two months entered the Central Sectionof California Music Festival and brought home a rating of "superior."

Miss Withrow left for the East coast and Marilyn applied for entrance to Dominican College to major in music. She was accepted and is now studying under the superior guidance of Stephanie Shehatovich.

Her program to be presented at the Carmel Women's Club: Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, by Bach; Sonata, Opus, 90 by Beethoven; Nocturne, Opus 37, No. 2, by Chopin, Scherzo, B minor, Opus 20, by Chopin; La Serenade Interrompue, La Cathedrale Engloutee, and Jardins sous la Pluie, by Dubussy. Campanella, by Paganini-Liszt.

Your CONGRESSMAN REPORTS

The Truman administration and its leaders in Congress apparently can't make up their minds as to just how much of the president's program they will try and vote on before adjournment this summer.

It looked like the Senate program would be confined to action on the Atlantic Pact, extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act and a labor bill to supplant the Taft-Hartley Act. Now a last report says nothing in Truman's program is "out the window."

If that is the case, this I do know. The President is going to have to plead with influential members of his own party. It has refused to send the housing bill (passed by the Senate) to the House floor for action, because of satisfaction as to how much it would cost or whether it would get results.

I am, along with an overwhelming number of other members of the minority party, ready to vote to make lynching a federal offense, to abolish the poll tax, and to take other construction action set forth by both parties last year.

I'm gratified to report both branches of Congress gave final approval to my amendment authorizing the United States Department of Agriculture to do research on the Oriental fruit fly. The bill is before the president now.

If he signs it - we believe he will - the USDA will start a program to try and control and eradicate this and other plant pests and diseases. About $800,000 would be spent, and would mean millions saved to growers and workers.

Sen. Fred Weybret and Assemblyman George Clark of California should have a big vote of thanks from the tree fruit industry for their excellent report on that situation following a trip to Hawaii.

Among other business is consideration on a "trial run" of the new subsidy program. I am a member of the House Agricultural Committee. The trial would be limited strictly to a few commodities, and effects must be studied.

PACIFIC GROVE SUMMER SCHOOL

Instruction in upholstery appreciation has been added to the Pacific Grove Summer School Program. The course will be taught by Mrs. Dorothy Rumrill of the Salinas City Schools.

The class will meet each Monday and Wednesday afternoon and evening during the summer session. If enrollment requires additional time, a Friday section will be organized. The class will meet in the Pacific Grove High School woodshop.

Mrs. Rumrill has been teaching this work full time in the Salinas Adult School and will serve the Peninsula this summer. Mrs. Rumrill recently participated in a workshop for upholstery teachers sponsored by the Los Angeles Adult Division and is acquainted with all the recent developments in method.

Director Ray Washburn has announced the addition of Thomas E. Eagan to his Summer School staff. Professor Eagan has instructed in music at San Jose State College for the past 18 years. He is a specialist on woodwind instruments. In addition to his morning duties, he will also conduct the Community Band for Adults.

In addition to Professor Eagan, Herb Miller and Miss Connie Messenger will assist Mr. Washburn. Mr. Miller will direct the brass instruments, and handle the school band assignments. Mr. Miller is a member of the Santa Cruz Symphonic Band and the Monterey Peninsula Symphony.

Ray Washburn, in addition to directing the music program, will handle all string instruction. Also, Mr. Washburn will direct the Community Orchestra for adults this summer.

Vocal music will again be under the capable direction of Miss Connie Messenger. Miss Messenger also will handle a section of tonettes.

Peninsula adults are invited to participate in all Summer School activities. Especially designed for adult needs are the many evening classes. These classes started Monday and close August 12.

The home crafts program is the foundation of the evening program. Instruction is given in general crafts, ceramics, upholstery, leather craft, sewing and dressmaking, knitting, and photography appreciation.

Other courses include three sections for adults preparing for Americanization, typing, music appreciation, band, orchestra, mixed chorus, and physical recreation. These meet at the Pacific Grove High School.

There is no charge for instruction. Everyone is welcome. For further information, call Mr. Bawden, principal, at Monterey 9846.

Chinese album music recordings, made locally, are now available in Chinatown music stores. The album, containing four recordings of Cantonese operatic music based on an ancient Chinese legend, is manufactured by the Golden Star Radio Co.

The music, sung by the local Cantonese operatic star, Miss Sui Fei-fei, is based on the climatic scene from the opear "The White Snake." The title in translation is "Si-lum Offering Sacrifices at the Pagoda," considered the most poignant scene from this opera.

SILHOUETTE

Have you ever played the word game, Associations? You know, someone says a word, and, on the instant, you must answer the associating word, as it occurs to you.

A group of Carmelites added a fillip to the game the other evening by reversing the order. Six persons gave six clues, and the rest of us had to respond with our answers - fast! The clues were:

1. Architecture
2. Immortal Music
3. Feminine pulchritude
4. Americana
5. Hilarious theatre
6. Carmel Institution

The answer: Dene DENNY - WATROUS Hazel.

Two nationally known artists, two renowned impresarios, two successful business administrators, two highly individual and charming women...Carmel's two leading ladies are one, in the merging of their great talents, their ambitions, and their indefagitable energies.

It is to this unique "team" that Carmel owes much of its cultural development, the story of which has crossed the nation; its architectural individuality...its leadership in the theatrical world.. its material prosperity.

To tell the story of the current activities of Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous, creators of the Bach Festival...the Gold Coast Troupers of the First Theatre of Monterey... the Carmel Music Society...the San Jose Concert Series and Broadway Productions Season...the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra... and the designing and building of Carmel houses, would be to tell a familiar tale to Carmel, and to those informed upon the progress of music and drama throughout the country. The steady progress of Denny-Watrous during the past 25 years is a success story and a thrilling one...But to me, far more intriguing is the prologue, the story of how Denny-Watrous "got that way"... Do you know?

Through the verdant garden where an impromtu fountain sprayed sunlit rainbows we strolled into their studio...What a beautiful room it is, with its two concert pianos forming the central pattern of polished ebony, the great double height panoramic window, many paned, the fireplace with its deep purple chimney, the "Little Person with a 'Cello" painted by Maxine Albro especially for the studio, the emerald green velvet cushioned Victorian chairs...here indeed is a room expressing the charm and imagination of its creators. A blend of the old and the new perfectly balanced, rarely accomplished. Down a step, off the studio is the intimate "sitting room," a triumph in its modern functional, albeit comfortable, furnishings, its gay colors, books that made one long to linger, a rare and beautiful picture of Johann Sebastian Bach...It was in this charming sun dappled room that I learned about the beginnings of two really great Californians.

There was a great deal of laughter and confusion at first because Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous take their honors modestly, and themselves with a delightful sense of humor...Their self interest is far, far outweighed by their respect for their many 'projects." Finally I had to beg them to tell me, one at a time, about 'when you were a little girl.'

DENE DENNY, MUSICIAN

"I was born on a thousand-acre ranch in northern California," Miss Denny told me, "There were lots of brothers and sisters and we were all ardent ranchers, rode miles and miles every day, and even we girls were taught to handle cattle. My father was a born pioneer. Born in the East he came to California as a very young man and picked a California girl for his wife. He was, in turn, the founder of one of the State's first chain stores, a banker and a merchant. My love of music started so early that I don't remember when. My parents encouraged me with piano lessons locally and as soon as I was old enough I was sent to San Francisco where I studied under Gyula Ormay and the great and much lamented Frederick Zech. Going on to New York I worked with Leo Ornstein." Miss Denny is a graduate of the University of California where she earned her B.L. and M.L. degrees and her Phi Beta Kappa Key. During her years in New York and San Francisco, her reputation as a concert pianist earned for her a place among the nation's outstanding musicians. Her interpretations of the classics and particularly of the moderns have been universally praised by critics from coast to coast. In San Francisco, in the early 20's Dene Denny's studio was the meeting place of serious musicians, the scene of many intimate recitals..In addition to her music she loved the theatre, she was a familiar figure at first nights, a welcome friend in star doored dressing rooms.."It was around 1922, in San Francisco that I met Hazel Watrous, at the studio party of a mutual friend..and that is where and when the Denny-Watrous story began...."

HAZEL WATROUS, ARTIST

"I was born too, in Central California," laughed Miss Watrous, "into a family where pictures and their creation were of prime importance because my New England born father, Steven Watrous, who crossed the country to California in 1852, was famous for his landscape photographs. He was one of the original group who successfully used dry plates in photography, and we children grew up in an atmosphere of pioneering in the arts. I don't remember ever "studying" design as a child, knowing the form and balance of a picture was as much a family routine as reading books and listening to music...it all was, I guess, just doing "what comes naturally."

NAVY SHOW TONIGHT

The opening curtain will be drawn tonight on "Ladies In Retirement" when the Little Theatre Group of the Navy Women's Club makes it's first presentation of the 1949 season at the Naval Air Station Auditorium.

The cast, an all amateur one, is composed of wives of officers of the General Line School, and one lone male, himself a student. It has been expertly staged and costumed by members of the Drama Group and the entire play has been under the professional supervision of Mr. Dan Totheroh.

The play itself, alghough a difficult vehicle, was chosen by Mr. Totheroh because he felt that the numerous talents available this year among the navy group called for something of a "showcase" to establish their merits, and observers at the last rehaersals have said this production of "Ladies in Retirement" will be among one of the finest dramatic presentations of the Peninsula's seasonal offerings.

Film Society For Carmel

The Village Film Society, of Carmel, will have its first performance tonight and Friday at 7 and 9:15 p.m. at the Carmel Women's Club, 9th and San Carlos. The first presentation will be "The Stone Flower," a folk tale in color, a recent Russian Film with English titles. It will be supported by two unusual short films illustrating animation.

The films to be shown are the type that discriminating filmgoers outside of major cities have little chance to see. These films are classics, foreign and domestic, professional and amateur, standard and surrealistic.

This summer, the group promises such interesting and entertaining films as Shakespeare's "As You Like It," with Lawrence Olivier and Elizabeth Bergner; Switzerland's "The Eternal Mask;" Russia's "Alezander Nevsky," with music by Prokofiev; France's "Generals Without Buttons;" Germany's "La Boheme," and France's "The Lower Depths."

Supporting all of these films will be interesting shorts from all over the world, including Jan Masaryk's production of Smetna's "The Moldau," Britain's famous documentary "Night Mail," and China's "Painting the Chinese Landscape."

Membership cards, which will admit bearers to any four presentations, will sell for $2.60. Single guest tickets may be had for 80 cents. All tickets will be sold at the box office on nights of the presentations.

DENNY-WATROUS

Finally father went to Tahiti for the French Government on a photographic mission. I went first to San Jose State College, then to the Art Institute of San Francisco.. the University of California followed the California School of Arts and Crafts, and finally I went on to Columbia University. My primary interest was in applied design, although for a time I went in quite seriously for portraiture." "She will never tell you," Miss Denny interupted, " but they were top flight portraits too. It is next to impossible to get Hazel to talk about herself." Miss Denny's comment made this interviewer smile, because the real story is that Denny-Watrous are a pair on par when it comes to understatement concerning their individual accomplishments...it is when they say 'we' that they are happiest!

Following her years of study, Miss Watrous was appointed Supervisor of Art for the Alameda City Schools, which position she held for a number of years. Her field of excellence includes stage, costume, textile design and architecture. It was in 1925 that she arrested national attention by designing and building some 36 houses in Carmel, the first red tile roof, the first colored shingles were Watrous' innovations. But I am getting ahead of my story. To return to my Denny-Watrous prologue, Miss Watrous concluded, "Upon leaving Alameda (I felt that I wanted to produce again rather than teach) I went to San Francisco... and there at the studio of a mutual friend, I met Dene Denny, and that is when and where the Denny-Watrous story began..."

TO BE CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.

by Cerf Andsand.

I was walking down Ocean Avenue the other day for the first time in seven years - it has been that long since I left Carmel to make my fortune as a serious writer of children's whimsey - and I was knocked somewhat askew by a burley individual who turned out to be editor of this publication.

Turning to him with a frosty stare, I ennunciated, " I beg your pardon, but my back seems to have gotten in the way of your hand." That would normally be enough to stop any stranger, but this gentleman told me he had been wanting to meet me for years. He said he had admired my late successes in the East and wondered if I would consent to writing a column for the SPECTATOR.

The idea rather intrigued me. Although I returned to Carmel to get a much-needed rest, I thought right then and there that writing a column about my less illustrious neighbors (many of whom take a dim view of my fame and fortune) might be an excellent way to re-establish, if not friendships, certainly old acquaintanceships.

It has been my experience that people are very nice to you when you give them a little publicity. Not that I want to set myself up as Guardian of the Morals of Carmel-By-the-Sea, but certainly some of our more exuberant citizens will settle down to a more gentle pace when subjected to my watchful gaze.

In a way my column should provide an excellent means of relieving tensions and anxieties. Have you got a daughter who needs a little write-up now and then as to her availability to the local swains? Don't we all have visiting relatives we wish to impress by getting their names in print? (I can picture the scene: The beneficient host turns to Uncle Elbow and Aunt Kneesie as he picks up the phone to call yours truly, and he says to them with great aplomb, " After all, this is my town. How long did you say you'll be staying? Old Cerf will want all the facts, you know.")

Then, of course, this column will provide a sure means of psychiatric therapy. Most of us have good friends we abhor. What's better than to call up old Cerf and tell him all about their latest indiscretions?

You see? We have all kinds of possibilities.

But enough of this introduction. Let us get into the meat of this column.

Red Skelton and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Nesbitt, newly-weds Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gardiner, all were at Gallatin's the other night, knocking corks off champagne bottles. This sounds confusing, I know, but it seems the newly-weds were being feted.

I suppose it is the weather, but Carmel seems to be surfeited with honeymooners. Visiting Martha Stender is her cousin, Zelma, who has in tow a husband from South Pasadena, James Anderson. We tried to get a photograph of another young couple from East Orange, New Jersey, but ran into a snag. Our photographer wanted the young lady posed sitting on a wall in a local patio with her husband staring up at her. She couldn't get up on the wall by herself and when we asked " him" to give her a boost, he replied with a straight face that he was too tired.

Speaking of Red Skelton, Gladys Johnston tells us (from her ringside office at Monte Verde and Ocean) that he was causing a little congestion on Ocean Avenue at the weekend. He has one of those cameras that develops its own film in something like one minute flat. While he was taking pictures of localites and tourists on our main street, they were firing right back at him with their own cameras.

Red and Dick Sumner's " Laddie".

If you haven't heard about the Forest Theater Guild, it won't be Dave Prince's fault...He's been buttonholing everybody in town (D'yuh wanta join, D'yuh, huh?) He's doing all right too. There is a story on the guild's plans elsewhere in this paper.

While we're on the subject of The Arts, I just want to mention that Bach Festival tickets went on sale at the weekend. They may be purchased at the Morehouse Realty Co., Ocean and Lincoln.

Some very secretive people out in the Carmel Valley have launched a new enterprise called Horizons Unlimited, for which articles of incorporation were to be filed this week. Plans are in the making for erecting a combination playhouse and film studio in the hills above Los Laureles Lodge - and this will be a professional stage and television set-up. Board of the directors for the group includes Larry Moore, president; Millie Tice, executive secretary and Burt Rudophl, who will handle public relations. Others are in on the deal and it is understood they have been having meetings for several weeks.

Rehearsal is said to be started already on the first production, a topical musical review, which not only will be staged at some theater in Monterey or Carmel but is expected to be filmed for possible television showing. The group has bought an interest in Calmont Television, Radio & Electronics Corp. of America, and offices for Horizons will be set up here in the next few weeks.

The actors, writers and stage set people will be paid for their services and I understand this is definitely not an amateur group. Although the playhouse and studio will be located in the valley, I am informed that the enterprise is intended as a peninsula-wide activity for developing local talent on a professional basis.

They promise new personalities and unusual techniques, the timely rebirth of live-talent shows and a healthy development of what is termed a "visionary organization." We could use some of that.

Jack D. Bauer

Funeral services for Jack Bauer, 38, owner of Carmel's "The House That Jack Built," local jewelry store, will be held today at 10 a.m. in the Mission Mortuary, the Rev. K. Fillmore Gray officiating.

Mr. Bauer died at his home and was found Monday at 9:05 a.m. by the maid. He had last been seen Saturday evening. As this publication went to press, the cause of death had not yet been determined by Dr. Ernest Simard, pathologist. Mrs. Bauer, who was in Los Angeles at the time of her husband's death, returned to Carmel yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Bauer is survived by his wife, Margo; his mother, Mrs. Julia Bauer, of Vallejo, and one sister, Mrs. Virginia Horner.

Entombment will take place at the Chapel of the Chimes in Vallejo.
